NOTICE TO THE BAR

Pro Bono Scholars Program

The Court of Appeals has amended the Rules for the Admission of Attorneys and Counselors at Law by adding section 520.17 to provide for the Pro Bono Scholars Program (PBSP). The PBSP, first announced by Chief Judge Lippman in his 2014 State of the Judiciary Address, is a program of legal education administered by the New York State Court system in consultation with approved law schools in the United States that allows students in their final year of law study to devote their last semester to performing pro bono service for the poor through an approved externship program, law school clinic, legal services provider, law firm, or corporation. Students who enroll in the program will spend 12 weeks working full time in a pro bono placement, while concomitantly completing an academic component at their law school. For their work in the pro bono placement and the accompanying academic instruction, students will receive academic credit from their law school. As an added benefit to participating in the program, students will be permitted to take the New York bar examination during their final semester of study.

The first of its kind in the country, the PBSP is devoted to preparing students for the practice of law, impressing upon them the value of public service, and providing legal assistance to individuals of limited means.

A copy of the order amending the Rules is attached. For more information on the PBSP, please see the Program's website at: www.nycourts.gov/probonoscholars

The program is administered by the Chief Administrator of the Courts or a designee and provided through approved law schools in the United States.

(b) Eligibility. A student may participate in the Pro Bono Scholars Program upon proof that:

(1) the student is enrolled in the final semester of law school study in a first degree in law program at an approved law school in the United States, as that term is defined in section 520.3 of this Part, and satisfies any eligibility requirements set by the student's law school; and

(2) upon successful completion of the Pro Bono Scholars Program the student will have satisfied:

(i) the instructional and academic calendar requirements of section 520.3(c) and (d) of this Part; and

(ii) the necessary requirements for graduation at the student's law school, and will be awarded a first degree in law.

(c) Program requirements. A student enrolled in the Pro Bono Scholars Program must complete:

(1) the New York State bar examination administered during the final semester of the student's law school study;

(2) at least 12 weeks of full-time pro bono work at a placement approved by the student's law school and the Chief Administrator or a designee, where such work will be supervised by an attorney admitted to practice in the jurisdiction where the work is performed and by a faculty member of the student's law school; and
